West London has three of the capital's most dangerous roads for motorcyclists, with a total of 106 accidents taking place in the area last year.

The A219, taking in Scrubs Lane, Wood Lane, Shepherds Bush Road and Fulham Palace Road down to Putney Bridge, had total of 46 deaths, serious injuries and damage to bikes during 2016, making it the third-worst road in London.

The A40 from the Westway in Paddington out to Western Avenue at Hanger Lane, had 32 incidents.

And the A315, from Hammersmith Gyrotory, along the Great West Road and the Great Chertsey Road to Chiswick Bridge, was London's 10th worst highway for two-wheelers.

The figures, from insurer Swinton, showed 59 per cent of London's victims were aged 25-40 – and that 88 per cent of the accidents took place in good weather. Most were on a Tuesday. A total of 58 per cent involved bikes with engines which were between 50 and 125cc in size.

In all, 91 per cent of incidents happened on A roads in London – and 95 per cent of them involved male riders.

Biker Mike Woof said: "There are a lot of younger riders on scooters and mopeds who ride like nutcases, throttle all the way out, weaving through traffic. They overtake on the inside and even at pedestrian crossings when everyone else has stopped. I've had a few close passes from young riders when I've been on my motorbike.

"There are also a lot of younger riders buying powerful motorcycles too, which they don't have the riding skills or experience to handle properly.

"I see some of the young riders popping wheelies on the road, but they still can't corner properly.

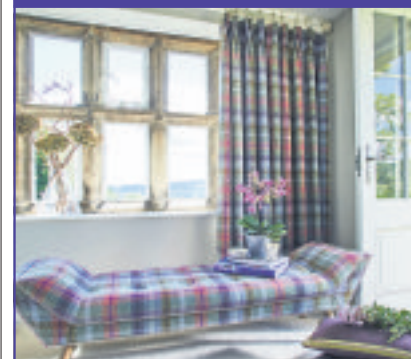

"Research into crashes in Europe shows that about 65 per cent of motorcycle crashes are not the fault of the rider – it is other road users not looking properly. But an experienced rider will back off and use more caution at certain danger points on the road network. Younger riders generally don't."

Rodney Kumar from road safety charity IAM RoadSmart said: "We often find that while drivers and motorcyclists strive to be as safe as possible, some find it a challenge to understand exactly how to do so.

"And as time passes after our driving tests, some of the simple tips we learnt to help stay safe can fade into the background. That's why it's important to offer useful and easily digestible information on how to be a safer biker."

Dan Agate from Swinton Insurance said: "Motorcycle safety should always be front of mind for any rider, but awareness events are great reminders of just how imperative it is to do what we can to stay safe on the road. And talking about it now to riders in Greater London, ahead of summer months, is important. We hope guides help people to think more about safety with every journey they make."

Walkers on a previous Walk for Wards event

Have a walk to fund the wards

BY PAUL LAGAN

paul.lagan@slp.co.uk

Get your walking shoes on and help boost a hospital charity's coffers to fund healthcare at five west London hospitals.

The charity is to lead an army of NHS supporters on its biggest ever fundraising walk – covering the same distance as Big Ben to John O'Groats.

Hundreds of NHS staff, patients and community supporters are expected to take part in the Walk for Wards event to raise money for Charing Cross, Hammersmith, St Mary's, Queen Charlotte's & Chelsea and Western Eye hospitals.

Imperial Health Charity is organising the sponsored two or five-mile walk around Paddington and Regent's Park in July.

Collectively, the walkers are due to cover more than 500 miles – the equivalent of marching from the heart of the capital all the way to the UK's northernmost point.

The charity hopes to raise tens of thousands of pounds to fund a range of healthcare projects across the trust's five London hospitals.

With less than two months to go until the big day, the charity is appealing for walkers.

Everyone taking part can choose to raise money for a specific ward or department within the five hospitals or towards the charity's More Smiles Appeal, which is funding the redevelopment of the children's intensive care unit at St Mary's Hospital.

Ella Segaran, a dietician who works in the Intensive care unit at St Mary's, is taking part in the walk with a team of colleagues.

They will be striding towards the finish line to raise money for the ICU, which is undergoing an expansion with the addition of 16 extra beds.

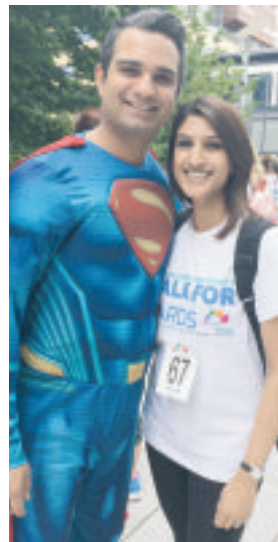

"The work that we do is absolutely amazing and everyone is passionate about saving lives," said Ella, who has worked at the trust for eight years.

"The majority of the work we do is major trauma so we see some quite horrendous things. But it's incredibly rewarding to see patients getting better under our care."

The walks start and finish at Merchant Square, Paddington, on Sunday, July 9.

Last year's event raised more than £20,000 to help the charity fund dozens of projects for the Trust, including major redevelopments, clinical research and initiatives to improve the patient experience.

Now the charity wants to top its fundraising total and encourage grateful patients to stand shoulder to shoulder with hospital staff on the start line.

Laura Kell, the charity's head of fundraising, said: "Walk for Wards is a fantastic opportunity for everyone who has received exceptional care and support at the trust's hospitals to say thank you with their feet, while enjoying the beautiful waterways of Paddington and Regent's Park."

"Every penny raised will be put towards making sure that patients continue to experience outstanding care and treatment during their time in hospital."

For more information about Walk for Wards and to sign up for the event, visit www.imperialcharity.org.uk/walkforwards

The entry fee is £10 for adults and £5 for NHS staff, children (five-17) and concessions.

Under fives can walk for free. There is no minimum sponsorship, simply raise as much as you can.

However, the charity will match fund the first 100 people that sign up to take part in the walk, up to the value of £100.

Funding helps reduce tremors

For patients with essential tremor, the dream of leading a normal life has until now been a hope rather than an expectation.

Uncontrollable shaking makes it almost impossible for some patients to write, use a mobile phone or even feed themselves, and many become withdrawn and isolated as a result.

But a £1.1million grant from Imperial Health Charity has funded research that is already turning lives around.

Clinicians at St Mary's Hospital have begun using new equipment that bypasses high-risk surgery and ineffective medication.

Unlike traditional surgery, the treatment does not involve cutting into the skull. Instead, high-intensity ultrasound waves are used to target specific parts of the brain with heat energy.

The results have been astounding. All eight patients treated so far experienced an immediate 95 per cent improvement in the severity of their tremor.

It means patients who were once unable to perform basic tasks can now take back control of their lives, while elderly or unfit patients are eligible for life-changing treatment for the first time.

Proud to support the five hospitals

Ian Lush, the chief executive of Imperial Health Charity said: "We are proud to support the work of the five hospitals of Imperial College Healthcare NHS Trust, providing essential funding to pay for a wide range of projects."

Ian Lush

"Since 2009 we have awarded more than £34million to the trust, supporting more than 500 initiatives designed to improve the hospital experience for patients and make life easier for staff."

"Our work genuinely changes lives by enabling highly-skilled clinicians to focus on what they do best – delivering top-quality care."

"But we would not be able to make the impact without the support of our tireless community fundraisers."

"I never cease to be amazed by the lengths to which our supporters will go – simply to say thank you."

"For those of you who would still like to say thank you, our Walk for Wards event is the perfect opportunity to show your gratitude."

"NHS staff, former patients and their families and members of the community who feel passionate about their local hospital will all stand side by side on the start line on Sunday, July 9, ready to say thank you with their feet."

"You can join them – and, in the process, raise money to help us help our hospitals do more."

Festival celebrates art in Hammersmith and Fulham

Watch out for Hammersmith and Fulham arrives big red bus as this year, a classic routemaster will be touring the borough.

It will be bringing pop-up performances to neighbourhoods near you.

The annual festival celebrating the fantastic work of the artists in Hammersmith and Fulham is just a few weeks away.

The bus will be taking artists around the borough to celebrate the launch of HF ArtsFest on Saturday, June 3, and is part of this year's theme of taking the arts to the people.

The nine-day festival will be packed with exhibitions, drama, live music, film screenings, walking tours and more at many different venues across the borough.

"There's a wealth of arts projects and events to be found in the community's own backyard," said the festival's chairwoman Petrea Owens.

"We're celebrating the world class venues and artists living and working in Hammersmith and Fulham.

"HF ArtsFest is working in partnership with the council to make this a great borough for the arts."

The festival will culminate with Hammersmith and Fulham's Unity Day on Sunday, June 11, a celebration of the borough's diversity.

It will see a march from Shepherd's Bush Green to Ravenscourt Park in Hammersmith, where there will be entertainment and speeches.

The annual H&F ArtsFest is just a few weeks away

It follows last year's inaugural event which saw thousands march.

Other highlights include a walking tour on the history of Bishop's Park, a Ravi Shankar memorial concert at the Bhavan Centre, a concert by the Fulham Symphony Orchestra, a children's drama workshops by Chickenshed Theatre, Twice as Nice Comedy Festival, a puppet show based on the popular children's book The Velveteen Rabbit, a showcase of talent from the Young Songwriter 2017 competition and an exhibition by the Society of Fulham Artists and Potters.

There will be more than 200 events at this year's festival and most of them are free.

You can see all the details of the events on your own doorstep at HF arrives website at www.hf-artsfest.com/.

Fin
Taylor

'A comedian of impressive range'

"Children are basically just drunk people, aren't they?" suggests Fin Taylor, revealing the thinking behind his Shepherd's Bush Comedy stand-up show for kids.

Specifically, he is explaining the difference in the way he handles heckling from a post-pub crowd, and the possibly more daunting prospect of a bunch of five to 10-year-olds.

"Slurring, can't speak properly, being sick - there's not a lot of difference," he says with a wry smile.

Taylor is a comedian of impressive range. He is one of a number of performers taking part in the inaugural Shepherd's Bush Comedy Festival - organised by Hammersmith and Fulham council in partnership with the Bush and PBJ Management - over the weekend of June 1-4, at the newly renovated venue in Uxbridge Road.

A darling of the Edinburgh

Festival, his Fringe shows there are very much for an adult audience, and are very funny indeed. But, not content with enduring the terrifying prospect of an adult stand-up show, he does it all for kids whenever he gets the chance too.

He describes the challenge as being one that interrogates 'a different part of your brain'. "It removes the artifice from what you do," he says. "It's just being silly in front of a bunch of kids, really."

Taylor's silliness is of a brand that is very child friendly - and he insists the array of innocent faces means there is never an overlap with the material from his very grown-up after-dark material.

However, he pitches the school-age show as something which should be equally pleasing to the mums and dads who act as their minders - a knowing nod in their direction, which elevates junior fun time into something trans-generational.

"What I'm trying to create is a brilliant way of keeping the children entertained, while their parents can enjoy the show too," he says.

Taylor is a Shepherd's Bush resident, living just over the road from the Bush Theatre, and he sees the venue as a sort of second home - he can often be found writing material in the cafe there.

"It's great to give something back to the place," he said. "Local community festivals are all about that. I know the audience will be nice, and it will also be good to see some of the other acts."

He'll just be hoping stand-up for kids turns out to be child's play.

● Stand up for Kids is at the Shepherd's Bush Comedy Festival, Bush Theatre on Saturday, June 3 from noon. Tickets are free.

Credit union helps boost firm

A Kensington start-up which produces special 'free-from' cookie dough for people affected by food allergies, has become the first recipient of a Big Cheese loan from Your Credit Union.

Karen Cappetta, founder of Angels and Cookies, borrowed £2,500 from the Kensington High Street-based community bank to fund a stand at the upcoming Allergy and Free From show, to be held at Olympia on July 7-9.

Big Cheese loans are the brainchild of the union and Portobello Business Centre, funded in partnership with the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea, aimed at helping create 50 new businesses in the area a year.

The cash will enable Karen to take part in the show to help promote her 14 allergy-free gourmet ready-to-bake cookie doughs, which are wheat, gluten, dairy, egg, soya, vegan, and nut-free.

"I am delighted to have been given this opportunity to promote and bring awareness about my products," said Karen.

"This small injection of capital allows me to reach out to like-minded businesses and exhibition visitors who suffer from food allergies and intolerances. By attending this show, we can speak to the people who can help us grow our business to the next level, at the same time officially launching the Angels & Cookies product on to the world stage."

Angels and Cookies dough flavours include chunky chocolate chip, fantastic fudge, ginger and spice and very vanilla cookie dough.

The Allergy and Free From show is set to attract more than 35,000 people living with allergies, coeliac disease, respiratory conditions, intolerances and skin and chemical sensitivities.

"Living with an allergy can be incredibly tough and hard on children, especially when kids see all their friends tucking into party food and snacks they are unable to eat," said Karen.

"My mission is to make that possible by giving everyone suffering from food allergies and intolerances the possibility to indulge without harming their health while creating the best tasting free-from food-products and so good that those who don't have food intolerances or food allergies will not be able to tell the difference."

William Rhodes, CEO of Your Credit Union, said the community bank was thrilled to be able to support Karen to help expand her business.

Children baking cookies

He said: "Finding access to sources of finance early on for a business is a vitally important step along the way towards sustainability and success."

"It can be really tough for small firms to borrow the money they need to get their businesses off the ground despite being a viable credit risk. Even quite modest amounts can make the difference between someone taking the leap or never acting."

Big Cheese' loans specifically support the self-employed and new micro-businesses with loans.

Typically loans will be for a few thousand pounds, but could go up to £10,000.

Sophie DeMasi

Teen is on song for contest

A talented teenager from Hammersmith has won a prestigious songwriting contest judged by professional musicians including Tom Odell and Imogen Heap.

Sophie DeMasi impressed the judges in the Song Academy Young Songwriter 2017 competition with Enough For Me – a tune about pursuing the things in life you are passionate about.

The 16-year-old was awarded the top spot in the 13-18 category of the competition, which is now in its sixth year.

More than 500 youngsters from across the world entered this year's competition, with entries from as far afield as Mexico, China, Canada, India, the United Arab Emirates and the US, as well as Europe. But Sophie's song came out on top, with the panel of judges enthusing about its sincerity.

According to singer-songwriter Tom Odell, the song has a "strong rhythm and the chorus is great".

Sophie – who last year was among the top GCSE pupils at St James Senior Girls' School, in Olympia – said that she loves songwriting because "it lets me take how I'm feeling at particular moment and turn that into something I can look back on".

She added: "It's amazing to be recognised by such respected judges and crazy to think a song I wrote and produced in my room is being acknowledged to this extent."

Sophie is now set to perform her winning song during a live showcase taking place at Westfield London from 2-5pm on June 4.

She will be joined by nine-year-old Zachary Zab, from Chelsea, who won the 8-12 category of the Song Academy Young Songwriter 2017 competition with his song, My Light.

Cllr Nick Paget-Brown,
Leader of Kensington &
Chelsea council

The vast majority of Kensington and Chelsea landlords are law-abiding and meet their obligation to tenants. Unfortunately, however, there are some bad apples who put tenants at risk by flouting safety standards. In the past month the message was sent loud and clear that any landlords who fail to meet their obligations will face prosecution by the council.

The landlord of a Holland Park property, described by a district judge as a "death trap" and an "accident waiting to happen", was fined £57,000 in April for a range of offences and breaches of housing regulations.

The council's environmental health officers spend a lot of time inspecting properties. Ideally, if they see standards are not being met, they can put things right by talking to the landlord and advising what needs to be done. However, in some cases conditions are so unsafe that further action needs to be taken.

In this case, our officers were alerted to the safety breaches after the fire brigade were called out to a fire.

They discovered the property had no automatic fire detection system. This meant there was no proper early warning system to alert occupants to a fire. Some rooms had no fire doors, while other rooms had damaged fire doors with holes in at least one. Rooms were fitted with key-operated locks, so in the event of a fire there was a risk of the occupant being locked in their room.

There were loose electrical cables with multiple electrical adaptors being used, placing extra load on electrical circuits and increasing the likelihood of fire. There was no evidence of a current Gas Safety Certificate for the boiler or heating system. One escape route, a staircase, was obstructed by a table, chairs and a gas cylinder.

All of this is completely unacceptable and put the tenants' lives at risk.

The magistrate gave the landlord credit for an early guilty plea. The landlord also acknowledged that he was struggling with a medical condition and was not capable of managing property at the time. The court heard the landlord was no longer letting the property and was due to sell it.

However, the magistrate took a dim view of tenants being put at risk.

I hope this prosecution sends a message to other landlords that they must ensure their properties meet necessary safety standards.

If the council discovers that laws to protect tenants are being flouted, we will investigate and prosecute.

If you are living in private-rented accommodation in Kensington and Chelsea and are concerned about conditions then get in touch with our Environmental Health department at environmentalhealth@rbkc.gov.uk or on 020 7361 3002.

If you are a landlord and are in anyway unsure of your legal duties regarding fire safety in your property then go to www.rbkc.gov.uk/housing/living-healthy-homes for information.

While it's disappointing to see some landlords not meet their responsibilities, it is important that we continue to make sure bad landlords are held accountable.

We do this not only for tenants – who deserve a safe place to live – but also for the vast majority of landlords who do the right thing and deserve not to be tarred with the brush of the few.

The Citizens' Advice Bureau has thanked all its volunteers

A big thank you to all our volunteers

Councillor Robert Freeman and Cllr Bevan Powell are looking forward to presenting the awards on Monday to celebrate National Volunteering week at a lunch to say thank you to our volunteers for the invaluable work they do in Kensington and Chelsea.

They have given up their time to train as advisers provide essential and often life-changing support to members of our community when they need it most.

Citizens Advice Kensington & Chelsea continues to look for new ways we can benefit local people and we are looking forward to delivering two new services in the borough.

The Last Rights Project

was awarded national funding from the Martin Lewis Fund to advise on end of life issues including wills, power of attorney and setting up treatment and care plans – matters we often ignore until too late. We are also one of only two centres in London awarded funding to deliver specialist debt advice for people with disabilities.

Sharlene Hogan, arrhythmia nurse at Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust

Most people do not check their pulse on a regular basis but checking it as little as once a month could help to detect a common heart rhythm disorder in some people.

Atrial fibrillation affects around a million people in the UK and is more common in people aged over 65.

It causes an irregular and often fast heart rate. If left untreated, it can cause clots to form in the heart which can travel to the brain and cause a stroke. Sometimes it's associated with shortness of breath, tiredness, chest discomfort or dizziness, but often people don't have symptoms. That's why it's so vital to check your pulse – it may be the only way to find out if you have this condition.

The best method is to place your first and middle finger on your wrist just below your thumb. Press gently and check your pulse for one minute. Don't press too hard as you may interrupt the blood flow and you won't be able to feel anything.

Get used to what's normal for you. Can you feel a regular or irregular pattern, are there any pauses and does it skip a beat?

HAVE YOUR SAY
Email: news@londonweeklynews.co.uk

Check it around once a month – the best time to check is first thing in the morning before getting out of bed or when you are at rest.

If you are worried that your pulse is irregular see your GP who may arrange diagnostic tests, including an electrocardiogram (ECG) and an echocardiogram, and prescribe blood thinning medicines to help stop clots forming, preventing stroke.

You may be referred to an electro physiology (EP) consultant. At Guy's and St Thomas' we offer a nurse-led cardioversion service, which uses electricity to resync the heart.

We also perform ablation procedures, which target the tissue thought to be responsible for causing the irregular rhythm.

Heathrow's routes claim 'must be taken with a pinch of salt'

A campaign group has said that Heathrow's claims that a third runway would deliver a lot more routes to domestic destinations 'should be taken with a pinch of salt'.

HACAN, the residents' organisation which opposes a new runway, warned people to read the small print of the announcement very carefully.

Heathrow, in its response to the Government's consultation, argued that there could be as many as 13 new domestic routes, but admits in the small print that the 'potential new routes are based on potential route maps published by easyjet and Flybe'.

Easyjet has not confirmed yet that it will fly from Heathrow, even if a third runway is built. HACAN chairman

John Stewart claimed that Heathrow's claims were based on evidence 'so flimsy that it could fall apart at any moment'.

He said: "Heathrow's claims should be taken with a pinch of salt. The intention is more to try to reassure the regions that a third runway could benefit them rather than a serious prediction about the number of domestic destinations a third runway will serve."

The Government's own consultation document, published earlier this year, downgraded the national economic benefits of a third runway to £61 billion over 60 years. This compares with the Airports Commission's estimate of £211 billion on which Heathrow's promises of growth and jobs to the regions was based.

More planes could soon be taking off from Heathrow airport if the third runway goes ahead

March for unity at HF ArtsFest

Celebrate Hammersmith and Fulham's diversity and take a stand against racism at the borough's Unity Day.

The event has become an annual fixture after last year saw thousands march in protest against a rise in reported hate crime.

"It was wonderful to see so many people last year coming together to show solidarity and celebrate H&F's diversity," said the mayor Cllr Mercy Umeh.

"The day was a fantastic example of H&F's community spirit, the respect we have for each other and clear message that racism will not be tolerated. We hope to see you at this year's Unity Day."

Like last year, marchers will gather in Shepherds Bush Green before progressing down Goldhawk Road, through Hammersmith and into Ravenscourt Park where a celebration of Hammersmith and Fulham's diversity will be held with entertainers and speeches. It will take place on Sunday, June 11.

Last year's event was headlined by reggae legend Sweetie Irie and featured a speech by Lord Alf Dubs who campaigns to aid refugees and who himself fled from the Nazis to England after the outbreak of the Second World War.

This year's line-up will be announced soon. It will feature singers, dancers, circus acts and other entertainers who will be joined by speakers who represent the diverse community.

There will be stalls selling food from all over the world, and the chance to find out more about the work of charities and community groups across the borough.

This year's event will be the culmination of HF ArtsFest. It is the festival's fourth year which shines a light on the many performers, arts groups, charities and other community organisations in the borough.

The programme will include music, art exhibitions, walking tours, film screenings, drama, comedy, readings, workshops and more.

You can find out more at the HF ArtsFest website www.hf-artsfest.com

Handy repairs for homeowners

BY TOBY PORTER
toby.porter@slp.co.uk

A tenants housing group has become one of the first in the country to make its own handyman service available to homeowners too.

Kensington & Chelsea Tenant Management Organisation (KCTMO) has made a cost effective and reliable paid-for, day-to-day repairs service available to all homeowners of properties it manages on behalf of the council. The move comes after its repair service, Repairs Direct, carried out 22,994 responsive repairs last year, with a tenant satisfaction rating of 98 per cent. During this time, it also carried out 99.7 per cent of all emergency repairs within 24 hours.

According to social housing data company HouseMark, responsive repairs are worth £3 billion a year in the UK alone.

The launch follows a successful pilot programme offering handyman and plumbing services to homeowners in Elm Park Gardens and in the World's End Estate, Chelsea.

Graham Webb, managing director of Repairs

Direct, said: "We're launching our repairs service to our 2,600 homeowners as there is the demand for low cost and reliable repairs in the area.

"Over three quarters of all calls we receive are repairs-related and we currently provide an offering to more than 22,000 of our tenants in Kensington and Chelsea.

"Additionally, our high levels of customer service are well above the industry average, and we've recently improved the speed of our responsive repairs by almost a third.

"As a result of this, we feel these factors provide us with the perfect platform to expand our service to these homeowners in the borough while maintaining a quality, trustworthy and secure service to all tenants.

"There are few others offering the same level of service at the same low cost and we're confident homeowners will now look to us as their chosen repairs service."

Repairs Direct has been operational since 2013, when it became responsible for all council-tenanted properties in the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea.

The Country Homes & Interiors Summer takes place at the Business Design Centre between June 1 and 3

Get inspired to give your home a makeover at interiors show

Ros Freeborn, who will be exhibiting and demonstrating at Country Homes & Interiors

This June, Country Homes and Interiors Summer will transform a hall of London's Business Design Centre into a haven of contemporary style, with 120 makers, up and coming designers and artists selling stand-out items for the home and garden.

The show, which takes place from June 1 to 3, is the first Country Homes & Interiors Summer event, packed with inspirational ideas, products and shopping from an eclectic selection of brands, including high-end and High Street favourites, as well as independent businesses in one very stylish day out.

As well as live demonstrations in the Country Seminar Space, a selection of hand-picked creative crafters will be on hand to advise on the latest trends while a host of interiors experts will be inspiring visitors with practical tips and skills to help reinvent their home.

A full-sized room feature from interiors stalwart Sanderson will provide an inspirational space for ideas before indulging in fantastic shopping for the home and garden as well as food, beauty, wellbeing and fashion.

We talked to London-based artist and maker Ros Freeborn, who will be exhibiting and demonstrating at Country Homes & Interiors Summer about her plans for the event.

Ros said: "For years I've thought that many of the lampshades we have in our homes are really very dull and, as an artist, I wanted to find a way to turn my paper collage artwork into a product which could brighten up a room.

"I finally came up with a solution – Papershades. The new lampshade launched with six of my floral collage designs."

Q: What attracted you to exhibit at Country Homes & Interiors Summer, London?

A: I've always loved the magazine – it's so aspirational and inspirational. And I know that the people who will come to this show are likely to be interested in new ideas and colourful products which will look lovely in a home.

Q: What will you be demonstrating at your stand?

A: I will be showing people how they can make their own design for a Papershade. I run workshops in my studio so that people can come and create something which is completely unique. I'll be letting people have a go at making their own collages – using all kinds of paper – and discovering how anyone (whether you are creative or not) can use paper to make a stunning paper lampshade which will work in their home or could be a really original present.

Q: What was the inspiration behind your creative paper lampshades?

A: I believe that lampshades don't have to be boring, they can be art. As an artist I'd been thinking hard about different ways to use my work and then I had the ultimate 'lightbulb moment'. Of course, that was the easy bit. Coming up with the idea, creating the template and 'reinventing the wheel' to find a way for paper to be self-supporting, took a long time. And I had to work out what kind of paper to use, the way it can be printed, cut and packaged. But the result is www.papershades.co.uk and I launched my first range of six floral designs at the start of this year.

Q: How easy is it to make your own paper shade?

A: It's very easy. A ready-made Papershade, which you can buy online, arrives in an A4 envelope as a flat pack. There are five panels which slot into the two wheels – one large, one small. It's very easy to fix the paper panels into the wheels and voila, you have made a paper lampshade which will fit onto all average lamp and light fittings.

Q: What are you looking forward to most at the show?

A: I'm looking forward to meeting lots of new people who share my enthusiasm for colour, paper and interesting design. And I hope that I'll inspire some visitors to come to one of my Papershades workshops and have a go at creating their own lampshades.

Q: Where do you look to for inspirations for your colourful designs?

A: So many things inspire me. I do love colour and all kinds of paper, so I'm always thinking of original and eye-catching ways to use tissue paper, wallpaper, wrapping paper and pages of magazines which I tear or cut up to create something new. The Floral Range, which I launched at the start of the year, are made from tissue paper art which conjure the colour and texture of wild flower meadows, poppies and gardens in full bloom. I made those pictures when winter seemed to have been going on for ages and I was desperate for sunshine and colour; so I decided to create my own 'flowering' in the studio and these colourful designs are the result.

● The Country Homes & Interiors Summer takes place at the Business Design Centre between June 1 and 3 from 10am until 5pm (4pm Sat). A one-day adult ticket costs £12, or £14 on the door. There are reduced rates for children and senior citizens but your order must be completed by 5pm on May 29 to receive discounted prices.

Thames Paddlers get new code to help them stay safe on river

toby.porter@slp.co.uk

Paddlers taking to the Thames in their boats have a new safety bible to turn to: the Paddling Code.

Paddling on the Tideway – A Code of Practice for Paddling on the Tidal Thames, was produced by the Port of London Authority (PLA), working with British Canoeing and several Thames-based paddling organisations.

The tidal Thames is 95 miles in length and is also known as the Tideway; it is home to 140 sporting clubs, from which more than 19,000 people take part in water sports every year.

It is also the UK's busiest inland waterway for passengers and freight. Sport enthusiasts take to the river for various sporting pursuits, including sailing, rowing and paddle sports such as stand-up paddle boarding, kayaking, canoeing and dragon boat racing.

The Paddling Code has been modelled on the success of the PLA Rowing Code and brings together in a single guide, with easy to read graphics, all the essential safety information for regular and first time paddlers, covering trip preparation, equipment use, navigating on the river, tips for tricky sections of the Thames, and handling emergencies on the Tideway.

Previously this safety guidance was spread across three separate publications.

Darren Knight, PLA assistant harbour master recreational, said: "The Tidal Thames is a diverse water space with relatively calm waters in Richmond, to busy, fast flowing sections in central London and out to an expansive estuary along the Kent and Essex coast.

"We've developed the Paddling Code to give paddlers all the information they need on how to enjoy the river safely in one place. This will give new paddlers the confidence to take to the Thames and plan their passages safely and provide seasoned paddlers new insight for taking on more challenging sections of the river."

Ben Seal, British Canoeing places to paddle manager, said: "The Tideway is one of the leading venues for water sports in the UK, with thousands of people taking to the river to exercise, de-stress or take in the scenic river views. The code is set to be a really valuable resource for paddlers, which will improve their safety and the safety of others on the river, but also help to make paddling a more enjoyable experience."

The Paddling Code is available online on the PLA website at www.boatin- gonthe-thames.co.uk.

All recreational users of the Thames are encouraged to download the PLA Tidal Thames app, which provides real time tidal information, a calendar of events, details of the latest river safety notices and mooring locations.

British Canoeing and the PLA will be launching the Paddling Code, with a paddle and briefing session, which is open to paddlers and group leaders to attend on Saturday, June 17.

Cyclist in 50s dies following lorry collision

A cyclist has died after being hit by a lorry at a busy crossroads in Chelsea.

The man, believed to be aged in his 50s, was pronounced dead at the scene last Monday morning.

Emergency services were called to the scene, yards from Chelsea and Westminster Hospital, at 10.43am following the collision.

Police said the driver of the lorry stopped at the spot but was not arrested.

The site of the crash, at the junction of Fulham Road and Redcliffe Gardens, remained cordoned off for much of Monday as police investigated.

A Met Police spokesman said: "Police were called at 10.43am on Monday, May 22, to a collision between a lorry and a cyclist in Fulham Road at the junction with Redcliffe Gardens.

"The male cyclist was pronounced dead at the scene. Officers are working to establish the identity of the deceased, who is believed to be aged in his 50s.

"The driver of the lorry stopped at the scene. He has not been arrested."

Battersea Dogs & Cats Home and the South London Press have teamed up to find new homes for some of the hundreds of animals at the pet shelter in Battersea Park Road. The charity aims never to turn away a dog or cat in need of help. Lost dogs and cats are reunited with their owners and, where that is not possible, the shelter cares for them until homes can be found.

The rehoming fee is £135 for dogs and £75 for cats. This includes microchipping, initial vaccinations, flea and worming treatment, a collar, identification tag and lead, access to our behaviour advice line. The animal will be neutered and there will also be the option of signing up to four weeks' free pet insurance and a starter pack of food, advice and special offers. A home visit may be required. To find out more call 020 7627 9234, email rehoming@battersea.org.uk or visit www.battersea.org.uk

Tallulah is a gentle soul who will gratefully approach her favourite people for strokes once she has built a bond with them. Watching her confidence grow in a calm and quiet environment will be a rewarding experience for her new family. Tallulah is able to live with first time cat owners and older children.

Mia

Age: 11 years 10 months
Breed: Domestic Short-hair
Sex: Female
Reference: 357075
Marvellous Mia is an affectionate girl whose highest priority is finding a comfortable lap to curl up on. She happily greets people with a friendly meow and has a spring in her step that defies her age. Mia is at her best with adults, although could also happily live with older children.

My young cat, Charlie, keeps weeing on the floor. What can I do to stop her doing this?

There could be a medical cause for unusual urination, such as a urinary infection, or it could be due to stress. Changing the type of litter you use can also cause cats to start urinating away from their tray. I'd advise taking him to your vet to get him checked out for any possible medical causes. If he gets a clean bill of health, then you can discuss his behaviour with your vet to determine the cause.

My five-month-old Pomeranian puppy has a horrible habit; she eats her own faeces. We've tried lots of things, including stool repellent tablets, but she has now taken to concealing it in the hedge as she knows we're waiting to pick it up. Please help.

Puppies often learn this behaviour when they are very young.

It can just be a learnt behaviour or it can be because they feel the need to recycle nutrients. It's worth checking with your vet whether you're feeding her the right food and she is getting all the nutrients and vitamins she needs. Try and clean up after her as soon as she has gone to the toilet to avoid her eating it. You could try putting some tinned pineapple in her food as this makes the faeces less attractive. Training her commands such as "leave" and "come" will also help so you can stop the behaviour before it happens. Good luck.

My dog, Rueben, has a pet passport and I'll be taking him to France for our summer holidays. Does he need vaccinations before we go?

Firstly, it's important to consider whether travelling abroad is the best thing for Rueben.

Some pets can find long journeys stressful and sudden changes in the temperature can be difficult for some pets. Arranging for Rueben to stay in a kennels or with a friend could be a better option. However, if he loves an adventure and will enjoy the holiday here is the information you need. Dogs, cats and ferrets travelling under the Pet Travel Scheme must be microchipped and have a rabies vaccination at least 21 days before travelling. It's also recommended that you take a visit to your vets at least three weeks before you travel as they can advise you on any relevant preventative medication that's required for travelling to your destination. Before you return to the UK, Rueben must be treated for tapeworm by a vet and have his passport signed. For further information on taking your pet abroad, visit: www.gov.uk/take-pet-abroad.

Spring has arrived and before long the weather will start to turn in our favour, which means more time spent outdoors for us and our pets. However, this also exposes our much-loved cats and dogs to increased levels of ticks and parasites.

There are a number of ways you can prepare and protect your pets during tick season. There is potential for real damage to be made should symptoms go unnoticed.

Ticks and fleas are attracted to the warm weather just as much as we and our pets are, which is what leads to the increase in numbers during the warmer months. After every outing with your dog, it is important to check their coat thoroughly for any signs of ticks. Ticks look very similar to spiders with an egg shaped body, they can be large and easy to spot or much harder to locate so be extensive with your search. For pets with long hair, run your fingers through it to check for anything unusual. Pay particular attention to the head, neck and feet where parasites tend to attach themselves the most. Should you locate any,

Shelley is a beautiful young girl who can be shy of new things, but has a curious streak that means she quickly becomes interactive and friendly. It won't take too long for Shelley to be seeking out attention and exploring her new home. Shelley is looking for a home without a dog.

Mittens

Age: 3 years 6 months
Breed: Domestic Medium-hair
Sex: Male
Reference: 357065

Mittens make look like a big macho man, but he really is a softie. As playful as a kitten, the only thing he loves more than pouncing on his mouse toy is a tasty treat. After having some fun and games, Mittens will happily curl up on your lap to snooze.

Millie

Age: 8 years 7 months
Breed: Staffordshire Bull Terrier
Sex: Female
Reference: 356538

Millie is a marvellous lady who cherishes human company. It can take a while for her to find her paws in a new environment, but when given the opportunity to settle in she becomes a fun and loving companion.

There are number of way you can prepar and protect you pets during tic season ## protect your pet as tick season arrives?

we recommend buying a tick remover tool, as it is the safest and easiest way to remove ticks and prevent a further spreading of disease.

Ticks attach themselves to the skin of animals and feed off their blood. The areas in which they feed can become red and irritated, in extreme cases enough blood can be consumed to make pets anaemic. Ticks can also be responsible for causing a number of diseases, the most well-known of which is Lyme disease – a condition that can cause arthritis and painful swelling of pet's joints.

Ticks can also infect animals with Babesiosis, a condition that affects the red blood cells of those suffering and can lead to death in dogs in a very short space of time if not treated.

There are supplements available that decrease, or even eliminate the amounts of ticks that attach themselves to cats and dogs, it is best to opt for chemical free repellents. The AniForte Tick Shield, is chemical free as those used in some products can affect the pet's nervous system.

One of the most common complaints amongst pets in the warmer months is that they suffer with itchy skin. There are a number of causes, however in many cases, grass mites are to blame. These types of mites can cause animals real grief by aggravating the skin with their bites.

Again, there are natural repellents available that can be sprayed on pets before going outside that help to prevent these mites from attaching to your pet.

Alongside parasites, fleas are even more popular in the warmer months. There are a few different species of fleas including cat fleas, dog fleas and even human fleas. Cat fleas are the most common however and as well as making pets feel itchy and uncomfortable, flea saliva can also cause allergic reactions and the spread of disease.

Fleas are able to survive without a host for many months so it is important to thoroughly treat both your pets and your home extensively to ensure all traces have been removed.

Dogs are susceptible to ear mites when sending a lot of time outdoors. Some animals can react particularly badly, suffering intense irritation of the external ear.

Dogs infected with ear mites will typically scratch their ears excessively, even pulling out their fur as a result. In extreme circumstances, dogs can do damage to their ear drums and canal with their claws. You will also notice them shaking their head more than usual.

If ear mites are suspected, a really extensive inspection by a veterinary is advisable. Pets can then be treated on an outpatient basis with medication that kills the mites. Due to how contagious the mites are, all animals in the household should be treated and the home should be cleaned thoroughly.

The majority of parasites and mites are very treatable and can be nipped in the bud before any lasting damage is done – it is just a matter of keeping a close eye and being prepared.

Seasonal favourite for visitors ideal for half-term is a popular showcase of butterflies from the world's tropical forests.

Sensational Butterflies at the Natural History Museum is open daily, offering people the chance to enter into a world with the fluttering insects usually found in the tropical forests of Central and South America, Africa and Asia.

In addition to enjoying the huge burst of colour, people can trace the natural cycle of the butterfly through the transition of the crawling caterpillar into the beautiful butterfly.

Tickets cost £6.50 for adults and children or £22 for a family ticket.

Other highlights at the museum include the Wildlife Photographer of the Year competition show, which features the world's very best nature photography.

The prestigious show, with work by accomplished professionals as well as talented amateurs, features 100 images selected by experts from around 50,000 entries. The work covers the huge diversity of life on our planet, from urban foxes to mountain hares.

Tickets cost £12 for adults and £7.50 for children.

Half-term visitors to the museum can also catch the free Art of British Natural History show with work dating from the early 18th century, which celebrates the country's flora and fauna.

The May half-term is a perfect time to enjoy rowing or pedalling on the famous Serpentine in Hyde Park – or have a trip on the UK's first solarshuttle.

A fleet of rowing and pedal boats operate on the lake, as does the UK's first solarshuttle, a magnificent vessel which glides silently across the lake, powered only by the sun.

The smaller boats can hold up to six people each while the solarshuttle carries up to 40 passengers.

Boating times are from 10am until sundown, at around 8pm.

Tickets cost £12 for adults for one hour or £10 for 30 minutes. For children aged under 15 the cost is £5 for one hour or £4 for 30 minutes.

There is no charge for children under the age of four. Alternatively family tickets, for two adults and two children, cost £29 for an hour or £24 for 30 minutes.

For information call 020 7262 1330, email: enquiry@the-boathouselondon.co.uk or visit www.solarshuttle.co.uk

Royal Parks are also organising activities in Kensington Gardens and Hyde Park over half-term.

The free Discovery Days – Flower Power at the Education Centre in Hyde Park are to be held on Wednesday and Thursday.

Children can drop in at any time between 11am and 3pm for a fun-packed day of free and exciting activities for all the family. Activities include crafting a flower on a stick, finger painting a daisy bookmark, making pots and planting seeds or uncovering fascinating flowery facts on a discovery trail.

Visitors will also be able to explore the grounds including its sensory wildlife garden and mini beast hotel

Nature Explorers – Gardening Gang in Kensington Gardens offers the chance for children to enjoy digging and planting in the park's allotment.

The event, for children aged eight to 11, includes a host of outdoors activities at the allotment including feeding the chickens and exploring the wilder areas of the park.

The event from 10 am until 3pm costs £15 per child.

For more information see www.supporttheroyalparks.org.

Free pop-up shows and art workshops are to be offered at the world's leading museum of design.

Attractions at the Victoria and Albert Museum, above, for the half-term include daily pop-up performances of a playful and interactive show by Chickenshed in which two friends come together to create their own music festival.

There is also a chance to make some unusual artworks at The Imagination Station programme of free family activities.

These included a sculpture workshop and one for children to design their own album cover inspired by the museum's collection of artworks created for iconic bands.

In the Digital Kids session, participants can use their imagination and a Makey Makey to explore how various materials can be used to build a playable instrument for a rock band.

A paid-for workshop, led by Soundcheck's music industry, is to give families the chance to work with others to create their own music festival. Tickets for the workshop which runs daily from 10.30am until 2.30pm and cost £8.

Highlights of the museum's current attractions include its new shows The Pink Floyd Exhibition: Their Mortal Remains and Balenciaga: Shaping Fashion, Designing the V&A and The Ephemera Effect: Hokusai's Great Wave.

General admission to the museum which opens daily from 10am until 5.45pm is free.

Sensational Butterflies at the Natural History Museum is open daily, offering people the chance to enter into a world with the fluttering insects usually found in the tropical forests of Central and South America, Africa and Asia the museum include the Human Evolution exhibition, featuring the first adult female Neanderthal cranium ever discovered, the most scientifically accurate, life-size Neanderthal and early Homo sapiens models ever made, and casts of the reconstructed skull, hand and jaw of the recently discovered Homo naledi.

There is also the Volcanoes and Earthquakes gallery with its famous simulator, dramatic film footage, exhibits and interactive games to explore the phenomena.

People can also say hello to Sophie the Stegosaurus, who is the first complete dinosaur specimen to go on display at the Natural History Museum in nearly 100 years.

At 150 million years old, the skeleton has more than 300 bones and includes one of the most scientifically valuable dinosaur skulls ever found.

There is also the world leading collection of minerals and gems in The Minerals and The Vault exhibition, which features the amazing 9,381 carat Ostro stone; the largest topaz of its kind. Other highlights include a giant emerald from Zambia known as Medusa, and Tissint – a Martian meteorite that landed in Morocco in 2011.

Activities from basketball to baking are being offered at venues across Hammersmith and Fulham.

The half-term programme, sponsored by the council, is to run from Tuesday until Friday.

Among the fun are football tournaments at PlayFootball in Shepherd's Bush, kayaking at Fulham Reach Boat Club and basketball at the Hurlingham Academy in Fulham.

There are also plenty of opportunities to take part in performing arts, with drama classes at Phoenix High School and at Charecroft Community Centre in Shepherd's Bush, as well as street dance at the Bayonne Estate in Fulham.

Youngsters who want to get creative with cake making can take part in the bake off at the Charecroft Community Centre, while fashion fans can sign up for the popular hair and beauty courses at several locations including Phoenix High School and Westfield shopping centre. Most of the half-term activities are run by Let Me Play and are open to young people aged 11-19.

For more information email info@letmeplay.co.uk or call 020 3475 7511.

Family gardening sessions, environmental crafts and active games are also taking place across the borough during the holiday. Charity the Hammersmith Community Gardens Association (HCGA) is hosting the free sessions for families with children aged up to the age of 12.

Gardening fun sessions are at Godolphin Garden, in Godolphin Road today.

The activities are at Ravenscourt Park Glasshouses, in Hammersmith on Wednesday and Loris Garden, in Loris Road, on Thursday.

All the drop-in sessions are being held from 10am-noon and 1pm-4pm, and are free, with donations towards materials welcome.

The special events for half-term include Wonderlab and TW Live: Roborace

Visitors to the science museum over half-term can volunteer to take part in research run by scientists and meet the engineers behind the world's first driverless racing cars.

Highlights at the museum, in Exhibition Road, include its current Robots show, Tim Peake's Spacecraft display and its £6m amazing interactive gallery Wonderlab: The Statoil Gallery.

The special events for half-term include Live Science, an ongoing project where scientists come into the museum to carry out research using visitors as volunteers.

People can also take part in experiments to find out more about themselves.

The latest experiment asks whether there are differences between people's facial expressions and how scientists can measure small variations. Live Science researchers from Imperial College London will demonstrate how they can study this fascinating area.

The event will be on every day except Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

There is also TW Live: Roborace, in which the exhibition considers whether robots could be the future of Formula One racing. People are invited to meet the engineers behind Robocar, the world's first driverless electric racing car.

The event is part of a series to give people the chance to meet the scientists and engineers behind cutting edge technology and is part of the Tomorrow's World partnership.

The museum's major exhibition, Robots, explores humanity's 500-year quest to reimagine ourselves – not through paintings or sculpture – but as machines.

The intriguing exhibition features a unique collection of more than 100 robots, from a 16th century mechanical monk to robots from modern-day research labs.

The ticketed show also currently includes The Last Supper exhibit by kinetic artist and sculptor Giles Walker.

Visitors to the museum can also take the chance to see Major Tim Peake's historic space craft Soyuz TMA-19M, which is currently on display.

The space explorer returned to earth in the descent module on June 18 last year after six months orbiting the Earth on the International Space Station, conducting experiments, walking in space and even running a marathon.

The historic exhibit is due to move to the National Science and Media Museum in Bradford in September.

There is also the ticketed event Space Descent VR with Tim Peake, in which people can experience the thrill of being an astronaut and retrace his 400km journey back to Earth from the ISS.

Major Peake is the guide for the virtual reality experience.

Another major attraction at the museum is the Wonderlab: The Statoil Gallery, which is the UK's biggest interactive science gallery which invites visitors to think like a scientist.

The £6million permanent gallery has more than 50 exhibits over seven zones, with special treats including the chance to ride on a giant rotating model of the solar system.

Tickets to the Wonderlab cost £8 for adults, £6 for a child and £22.50 for a family. General entry to the museum is free.

Adrian
Seal

Adrian Seal says the new upstairs dining room at Charlotte's Place is the icing on the cake for a restaurant that has been a firm favourite in the neighbourhood for more than 30 years

My romance with Charlotte's Place, a delightful chocolate box restaurant in the heartbeat of Ealing Common, started a while back, continued to flourish over the years and has now blossomed into full blown love.

So word that after a major refurbishment the restaurant now boasted a characteristic new upstairs dining room making the very best of the splendid location it occupies, had me eagerly planning my return to west London to take in this welcome new addition to the proud 'mother' of the Charlotte family, with its little sisters the Bistro in Chiswick and W5 in Ealing town centre.

After years of gathering dust and in the space in which the original owner Charlotte lived, the new upstairs dining room is the icing on the cake for a restaurant that has been a firm favourite in the neighbourhood for more than 30 years.

It replaces the old basement eating area and more than complements the pleasant ground floor space, which continues to attract diners.

The room's original Victorian features have been restored with exposed brick walls, traditional wooden flooring and windows that let the light flood in and bounce around the area. The design in the airy space is clean and simple, even down to the eye catching handmade lighting and feature mirror.

And of course the crowning glory is the splendid view over the Common it enjoys – surely one of the best in west London, with a backdrop of greenery and blossom gleaming in the sun on the day I visited.

But getting back to business it's not just about a restaurant with a view, the most important thing is that the food more than matches it.

Chef Lee Cadden has built quite a reputation in the three years or so he has been behind the pass, serving up well thought out seasonal dishes which make for a well-balanced and attractive menu, which now also includes a tasting offering.

My dining companion Fiona and I started with an artfully arranged clean and fresh tasting dish of goat's milk yoghurt, beetroot and sesame, and then the soft and delicate flavours of cured mackerel and cod cheeks sitting proudly on a creamy smooth vichyssoise with potato salad.

A chicken and mushroom terrine bagged plenty of depth and flavour and a crispy coated chicken wing with mouth-watering wild garlic butter lifted it to another level.

My main of succulent well-cooked middle white pork was the basis for a satisfying dish that worked especially well with a potato and brawn terrine, cabbage and earthy blood pudding, which added texture and interesting flavours to the dish.

Fiona's beef cheek, topped with foie gras, simply melted in the mouth, and the richness of a hard to fault dish was well balanced by deliciously sweet carrots braised in port and parmentier potato.

Being a sucker for puds, I could not resist the indulgence of a rich dark chocolate fondant which oozed goodness and was set off nicely by salted caramel ice cream and honeycomb. Yum, yum.

Throw in some very decent wines to complement the excellent food offering and a keenly priced menu (lunch is £27.50 for three courses and £22.50 for two) and you can see why Charlotte's still holds a special place in my heart – even more so now that it is a restaurant with a view hard to beat in west London and dine out on.

Bristol City weighing up move for Fulham stopper

BY RICHARD CAWLEY
richard.cawley@slp.co.uk

Bristol City are ready to test Fulham's resolve to hold onto Marcus Bettinelli as they contemplate making an offer for the goalkeeper.

City goalkeeping coach David Coles was in the stands at Reading's Madejski Stadium for the second leg of the Championship play-offs. And it is understood that Fulham's Championship rivals have been monitoring Bettinelli for a period of time.

The 25-year-old had played the role of back-up after last summer's signing of David Button from Brentford and his only action by mid-February had been in the FA Cup.

But after Button made a number of errors he won back his place in a 3-1 win over Ipswich Town on April 8 - and kept his place for the remainder of the campaign before play-off semi-final defeat to Reading.

Bettinelli failed to keep a clean sheet in any of his 11 appearances.

He was the number one at the start of the 2015-16 season under Kit Symons but suffered a serious knee injury which kept him out for seven months. Fulham boss Slavisa Jokanovic seemed to want a stopper who was more comfortable using his feet as part of a slicker passing game.

Bettinelli turned 25 last Wednesday and recently spoke about needing assurances he will play regularly.

He said: "I've got two more years left and I want to stay here. I love this club and want to play for this club but at the end of the day I need games. If I'm not going to get them that's it, but hopefully I can get them and get this number one shirt."

"I've been at this club for a long, long time but I'm going to be turning 25 in the summer. I want to be playing regular football, and this season I haven't done that."

Bettinelli has played 56 league games for Fulham and previously had two loan stints at Accrington and a season at Dartford.

Watford defender Hoban on Hoops' transfer shortlist

QPR boss Ian Holloway wants Watford defender Tommie Hoban on loan, writes Richard Cawley.

The 23-year-old spent the last campaign at Blackburn Rovers and played 11 times before suffering a dislocated shoulder which ruled him out March.

Hoban scored in a 1-0 win at fellow Championship strugglers Nottingham Forest in mid-April but the Ewood Park outfit lost their fight to stay in the second tier of English football.

Hoban still has four years to run on his Hornets deal and Holloway wants to give him a further taste of first-team action in west London.
